The Association of College and Research Libraries
Delaware Valley Chapter presents:

Putting Librarians in THEIR Place: A Fresh Look at Outreach

Friday, November 21, 2008
Penn State Great Valley
Malvern, PA

This workshop has been partially funded with Federal Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) funds administered by the Office of Commonwealth Libraries and would not have been possible without the help of the College & Research Division, PaLA. Show your appreciation by becoming a member of PaLA! And if you are a member — thank you!

Putting Librarians in THEIR Place: A Fresh Look at Outreach

Academic librarians are finding new and different ways of interacting with students and faculty, many of which take us beyond the walls of the library. In the morning session, we will hear Martin Kesselman of Rutgers University speaking on “Embedded Librarianship: New Roles Based on Traditional Values.” His talk will address the various ways librarians are weaving their services into courses, academic departments, and even international research partnerships.

Wayne Bivens-Tatum will then give a talk entitled “Seize the Day: Entrepreneurial Librarianship.” Are you wondering what an entrepreneurial librarian is? Someone who seizes opportunities, is tenacious, and has a desire to continually evaluate and improve services to a user community. He will discuss the strategies and techniques he developed on the way to becoming an integral member of and information service provider for an academic department at Princeton University.

For the afternoon session, we are planning a panel of three pairs from area academic institutions. The panelists will share their experiences, as the librarian or faculty member, when librarians collaborate with specific departments or faculty for library instruction and reference service.
